Falstaff Apartments is the first post Katrina completed and occupied Brownfields apartment complex in the Mid-City Tulane Ave Avenue Corridor. With Falstaff as a catalyst, five subsequent apartment buildings (illustrated above) were developed in the region assisted by tax credits, block grants and other incentives that flowed into the city after Hurricane Katrina. As a result, more than 1000 affordable and market-rate units are available in this area to support Mid-City New Orleans' housing needs.
